

Terri Jondahl

Terri Jondahl is Chairman, CEO and majority shareholder of CAB Worldwide Holdings Inc and CAB Incorporated (along with various foreign entities). CAB is an international supply chain management, manufacturing and distribution company specializing in industrial cast and forged metal products, components for wind towers and steel pipe flanges for water and industrial piping. CAB is headquartered in Buford, Georgia, a manufacturing facility in Nacogdoches, Texas and offices in Shanghai, Delhi, Busan and Johannesburg.

Terri has successfully maneuvered through complex international financing transactions and negotiations in the recent years of economic turmoil. She is adept at scaling the business both in times of rapid expansion and rapid contraction, with strong hands on skills in finance, sales & marketing, international business, quality assurance, lean process improvement and manufacturing management.

At the end of 2013 Terri became the majority shareholder of CAB and is currently in the process of seeking Women's Business Enterprise and Woman Owned Small Business Certification.

A tough and courageous warrior on the battlefield of business, Terri also considers her employees and their families to be important stakeholders as she makes business decisions. She is committed to a family friendly environment of hard workers who are encouraged to also find balance in their lives.

In 2007 CAB Incorporated was named one of Atlanta's 50 Fastest Growing Private Companies. From 1995 to 2008 CAB grew from $3.5 million in revenues to $105 million. Significantly impacted by the economic downturn, Terri has re-engineered the company to be a leaner and stronger business – with solid, diversified, revenues now in the range of $50 million and growing. She has developed a keen ability to use financial tools and metrics as leading edge indicators that help her to “see around corners” in her business. And she “credits” the “Great Recession” for forcing a new discipline on her business (and most businesses), which has resulted in a laser like focus on building a battleship balance sheet for the company.

In January 2008 Terri was named by Atlanta Woman magazine as one of the Top 25 Professional Women to Watch in Atlanta.

Terri served as 2011 Chair of the Gwinnett County Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors and continues to play an active role on the Executive Board.

She serves on the board of directors of the Gwinnett Health System, Georgia Gwinnett College Foundation Board of Trustees, and is active on several committees within these entities. She was also recently named to the board of directors of Gwinnett Managed Care Inc and to the board of Sequent Health Physician Partners LLC.

Terri also serves on the boards of the Gwinnett Medical Center Foundation, Gwinnett Public Schools Foundation, and the Gwinnett Clean and Beautiful Citizens Advisory Council. She serves on the Gwinnett County School Superintendent's Business Advisory Council and the Partnership Against Domestic Violence Development Committee and is a member of the International Women's Forum. She was recently appointed by Governor Deal to the Lake Lanier Islands Development Authority. She is also a member of the Committee of 200, a select group of women CEO and senior executives from around the country which includes highly influential women leaders from many major U.S. corporations.

She was a member of the class of 2006 Leadership Gwinnett program and she served as 1995 State President of the Texas Federation of Business & Professional Women.

Terri is passionate about business, entrepreneurialism and the importance of exposing young people to the concepts of commerce and entrepreneurialism. She believes this to be an important foundation for all students, regardless of their chosen professions. She shares her passion freely and has spoken to many school groups on business skills, leadership and entrepreneurialism and has worked with DECA to coach business plan competition teams. She regularly provides guidance and counsel to business owners and potential business owners, with solid, real world feedback on business planning and execution.

She has taken an active role in bringing together women leaders in the community

She is currently working to promote and support the creation of a Gwinnett Angels group, an affiliate of the Atlanta Technology Angels investor group. She believes strongly in the need for progressive communities to create a strong entrepreneurial ecosystem.... And this includes access to both capital and mentors to help businesses startup and grow.

Born in Northern California on the fringe of the wine country and redwood forests, Terri has spent much of the past 25 years in the south – the past 15 years in Georgia and prior to that 10 years in Texas. She graduated from Mendocino College in Northern California, with an A.A. in Business. But she attributes the bulk of her education to “learning – unlearning – relearning” -- a concept championed by author Thomas Friedman in “The World is Flat”. She believes mastering business requires “learning-unlearning-relearning” on a continual basis to adapt to the increasing velocity of change in today’s world.

Her passion for business is unsurpassed, but she does find time to enjoy the thrill of jet skis and the solitude of painting at the home she shares with her husband and step-daughter on Lake Lanier.
